WHAT'S HAPPENING NOW

"The Lord is Risen! He is Risen Indeed!"

We are in uncertain times. Cities and businesses closed down. Job losses. Staying home more than usual. Trying times. How can you use a time like this to build up your family?

Consider this: tell your family the stories of past trials and how God brought you through them.

Lasting families are intentional about passing on the family story. Kids who know their family's stories do better in every area of life. The shutdown can be a treasured time of family togetherness if you get creative.

Think about it. One of the greatest celebrations in the Bible is coming up: Easter. It's a time where Christians celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Yet that story begins with a betrayal, a fake trial and a crucifixion. The prelude to that grand mess began with a Passover meal Jesus shared with his disciples. To this day, Christian believers share the communion "meal" to remember Jesus and his great sacrifice.

Throughout the centuries—no matter the season, no matter the state of the economy, no matter how the stock markets were performing—people continue to remember and celebrate Easter and communion. These stories are unifying for people of faith.

So perhaps this weekend, you can be intentional and take time with your family to reflect on what Jesus did for us on the cross and what the empty tomb means to each one of us.
